TALK IT OVER

Who or what would an outside observer think is your source of supply and security? Do you have a story about learning for yourself that God is your Source? Since you know that God is your Source, what causes you not to trust Him? What are you doing about it? Why do you think finances are one of the easiest places to not trust? Discuss. What might be easily overlooked as financial dishonesty? God says, “Pay me first, pay yourself second (savings), pay your bills third.” Discuss. What have you learned about planning your spending that has been helpful to you? Financial freedom is not based on how much you make; it's based on how you spend what you make. Discuss. Commit to doing what God says. The truth is most people do not have the character and discipline to do what God says. Honestly, how does your heart personally respond to that statement? What is God speaking to you about concerning handling the money He is supplying you with? If you could pass on to your children one lesson you have learned through experience about handling money, what would it be?
